

DR. BULL'S WIFE THANKFUL TO ALL HIS PHYSICIANS

She Knows of No Differences
Between Them, but Wrangle
Becomes Public.

FEELING GROWS BITTER.

Elder Dr. Wynkoop III, Son
Called in His Place Is at Odds With Others.

Mrs. William T. Bull, wife of the physician who is suffering from cancer at the Plaza Hotel, is disturbed over reports that there have been differences among the surgeons and physicians who are attending her husband. Mrs. Bull is quoted as saying that beyond the bulletins issued each morning and afternoon, nothing coming from the sick room or the physicians is authentic. She added that the bulletins are distasteful to both her and Dr. Bull, but they continue to be issued because so many friends of her husband are anxious to learn the progress of his case. Then she continued:

"There has been no misunderstanding between Dr. Bull's physicians. They are in perfect accord, and it was due only to the illness of Dr. Wynkoop that his name did not appear on the bulletins. Dr. Blake, Dr. Deinfeld, Dr. Potter and Dr. Wynkoop have all been kind and kind to him and it is cruel to intimate that they are not working in harmony, when Dr. Bull and I know that they are doing everything in their power to alleviate Dr. Bull's sufferings, and that they have no thought that does not embody the very best interests of their patient."

Why Name Is Left Off.

This signed statement was given out last night concerning Dr. Bull:

"Dr. Bull drove around the park again to-day, accompanied by one of his nurses and his man servant. He thoroughly enjoyed the drive and was evidently benefited by it."

"Dr. G. H. Wynkoop's name has been omitted from recent bulletins because his illness has prevented his attendance on Dr. Bull for the past four weeks. Dr. Daniel W. Wynkoop, Dr. Wynkoop's son, has had no professional connection with Dr. Bull's case. (Signed)

"DRS. JOSEPH A. BLAKE,
"NATHANIEL BOWDITCH POTTER."

When Dr. D. W. Wynkoop was shown the statement issued by Drs. Potter and Blake, at his home, No. 123 Madison avenue, he replied that he was indifferent to the remarks made by the two physicians.

"My father's connection with Dr. Bull's case," he said, "is too well known and his reputation in the medical world too secure to make any comments upon such a statement as this."

Dr. Wynkoop in Charge.

Then Dr. Wynkoop added: "My father has had charge of Dr. Bull's case from the time he was stricken. It was at my father's suggestion that Dr. Blake performed the first operation. That is the way he came into the case."

"Dr. Potter was engaged merely to do chores. Dr. Bull said he did not want to be calling my father up at all hours of the night, as he might have to do sometimes should he become worse and need immediate medical attention. My father is not a young man, you know."

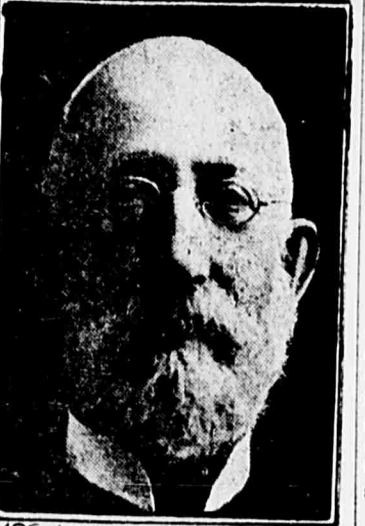

"Dr. Potter is a young man. He had assisted Dr. Bull in some of his work. It was finally arranged between my father and Dr. Bull that, when anything was needed at night, Dr. Potter should be called. He attended to the odds and ends of the case. Yes, that is really what he did."

When Dr. Wynkoop was asked regarding the present status of the medical staff at Dr. Bull's bedside, he said:

"Social Call Perhaps."

"My father is still in charge of the case. I am acting in his absence. He has been ill now for a month. I had been doing research work at Oxford for a year. He called me to come home, to take charge of his practice, and one of the cases which he asked me to attend to, quite naturally, was that of Dr. Bull. I arrived home the day after Christmas. Since my return I have been in daily attendance upon Dr. Bull. Dr. Blake, when seen at his home, No. 60 Madison avenue, said that both he and Dr. Potter visited the patient in his apartments at the Hotel Plaza daily."

THEY CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING THIS EVENING.

MRS. AND MR. ABRAHAM MARKS.

WILL DANCE AT THEIR OWN GOLDEN WEDDING

Abraham Marks and His Wife
Spent Most of Their Married
Life in Manhattan.

Fifty years ago to-day Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Marks were married in Warsaw, Poland. Their golden wedding anniversary finds them healthy, happy and vigorous enough to dance at the reception which is to be held next Sunday at their residence, No. 1630 Fifth-first street, Borough Park.

A few days after they were married in Warsaw they started for the United States, reaching this city after a long and stormy voyage. They settled in Schenectady, N. Y., where they lived for three years. Then they took up their residence in the old Fourth Ward of this city, where they resided until six months ago when they moved to Borough Park.

Mr. Marks in his close to half a century of life in this city has been an active, forceful man of affairs, and his wife has always interested herself in charitable enterprises. On this anniversary there will assemble in their home seven children—led by former Alderman Isaac Marks—thirteen grandchildren and one great grandchild.

This grandchild, by the way, is the only living great grandchild of Hiram Salomon, the patriot, who died in Debtor's Prison after giving $50,000 to the Continental Congress.

The reception on Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Marks will be probably the biggest affair Borough Park has ever seen. Friends and relatives of the fortunate couple from all over the city will attend to extend their congratulations.

KELSEY READY TO LEAVE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Otto Kelsey, State Superintendent of Insurance, to-day notified State Comptroller Gaus that he would assume the duties of First State Comptroller by Thursday at the latest.

This is taken to mean that he will resign as Superintendent of Insurance late today or some time to-morrow, probably the latter.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
J. C. Fitch

STEALS LOAF OF BREAD AND HIS BAD LUCK ENDS

William Austin, Out of Work and Starving, Is Fed by Captains and Offered a Job.

In a manner of speaking it was a lucky thing for William Austin that he stole a loaf of bread to-day. His larcenous act brought him a couple of hot meals—the first he had eaten in three days—a lot of sympathy and a chance to go to work.

Austin is thirty-two years old. Three years ago he was stage manager at Grand Central Palace. He married a girl from Providence, R. I., and went to that city to live.

Times are hard in Providence, Austin says. His wife is ill and living on the bounty of her relatives. On Thursday Austin spent his last money for a ride to New York on a boat, reaching here Friday morning.

He tramped the streets looking for work, and haunted the bread lines. At 4 o'clock this morning he was at Amsterdam avenue and Ninety-sixth street, walking aimlessly to kill time until daylight. He saw a wagon draw up to the sidewalk. A man jumped from the wagon carrying an armful of loaves of bread, which he dumped into a box standing outside the door of a grocery.

Austin waited until the wagon had gone. Then he lifted the cover of the box, extracted a loaf of bread, and slipped it under his coat. Policeman Meislin, of the West One Hundredth street station, who had been watching him from a doorway, sauntered up and arrested him.

It wasn't necessary for Austin to elaborate about his condition. He looked famished. Goldstein and Lieut. Conklin chipped in at the station-house and bought him all the food he could hold. A few hours later, on his way to West Side Police Court, he stopped in a res-

WIFE LEFT HIM HOMELESS, SO HE ENDED HIS LIFE

Hugo Els Left Letter Saying
Spouse, After Quarrel, Had Gone to Son.

Hugo Els was tired of life, so he ended it in Foley's Hotel, at No. 20 Wiloughby street, Brooklyn, by hanging himself with a twisted sheet early this morning. Els was sixty years old and had been a bookkeeper for Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., bankers, of No. 25 Broad street, Manhattan. He lived at No. 265 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn. He came to the hotel, which is managed by former Police Capt. Foley, on Sunday and took a room.

In accordance with instructions, Foley went to call him this morning and found the door locked. Receiving no response, he forced it and found Els dead, with a sheet twisted around his neck. He had attached it to a bedpost and slowly strangled.

On the bureau was a letter in which Els begged Foley's pardon for killing himself in his place. He wrote that he had had a quarrel with his wife, and that she had left home and gone to live with their son in Manhattan. He no longer had a home, he wrote, so he wished to die. He directed the Coroner or the police to look in his desk for his bank books and for the title to a burial plot in Hoboken.

At the Carlton avenue address Mrs. Charles Wertz said:

"Mr. Els came to live with us five months ago. He was known to my son-in-law, and wanted to get a room with a private family. We understood he had had some sort of trouble with his wife, but we never discussed it with him. He went away on Jan. 1, and we had not seen him since. He had been employed by Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. for ten years, and was a man of good habits."

O. Schwerdtfeger, head bookkeeper for Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., said this morning that Els had not been at his desk since Christmas Eve, although he had since drawn his salary. The firm understood that Els was laid up with rheumatism.

There was nothing wrong with Els's books," said Mr. Schwerdtfeger. "He had trouble with his son, a young man of about twenty-two, and I understood that he and Mrs. Els had parted a year or more ago on the boy's account. Els complained to me several times that his son bothered him a great deal for money."

OUTING FOR ROOSEVELT.

President Will Spend To-morrow
in the Country.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—President Roosevelt will spend to-morrow in the country. He expects to enjoy himself in horseback riding in the vicinity of the country home of Rear-Admiral Rixey, Surgeon-General of the navy, whose farm just across the Potomac River from Washington in Virginia he often visits.

During the Christmas holidays he went to the farm and tried out a number of the guns he will use in his African expedition.

WIFE LEFT HIM HOMELESS, SO HE ENDED HIS LIFE

Hugo Els Left Letter Saying
Spouse, After Quarrel, Had Gone to Son.

Hugo Els was tired of life, so he ended it in Foley's Hotel, at No. 20 Wiloughby street, Brooklyn, by hanging himself with a twisted sheet early this morning. Els was sixty years old and had been a bookkeeper for Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., bankers, of No. 25 Broad street, Manhattan. He lived at No. 265 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn. He came to the hotel, which is managed by former Police Capt. Foley, on Sunday and took a room.

In accordance with instructions, Foley went to call him this morning and found the door locked. Receiving no response, he forced it and found Els dead, with a sheet twisted around his neck. He had attached it to a bedpost and slowly strangled.

On the bureau was a letter in which Els begged Foley's pardon for killing himself in his place. He wrote that he had had a quarrel with his wife, and that she had left home and gone to live with their son in Manhattan. He no longer had a home, he wrote, so he wished to die. He directed the Coroner or the police to look in his desk for his bank books and for the title to a burial plot in Hoboken.

At the Carlton avenue address Mrs. Charles Wertz said:

"Mr. Els came to live with us five months ago. He was known to my son-in-law, and wanted to get a room with a private family. We understood he had had some sort of trouble with his wife, but we never discussed it with him. He went away on Jan. 1, and we had not seen him since. He had been employed by Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. for ten years, and was a man of good habits."

O. Schwerdtfeger, head bookkeeper for Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., said this morning that Els had not been at his desk since Christmas Eve, although he had since drawn his salary. The firm understood that Els was laid up with rheumatism.

There was nothing wrong with Els's books," said Mr. Schwerdtfeger. "He had trouble with his son, a young man of about twenty-two, and I understood that he and Mrs. Els had parted a year or more ago on the boy's account. Els complained to me several times that his son bothered him a great deal for money."

JAMES MCGREERY & CO.

Dressmaking and Tailoring Dep't.

Fourth Floor.

Orders will be accepted for Theatre and Evening Gowns at large concessions from usual prices.

Tailor-made Suits, of new Spring materials, suitable for Southern wear.

65.00, 75.00 and 85.00

Thirty-fourth Street.

JAMES MCGREERY & CO.

23rd Street

34th Street

On Wednesday, January the 13th.

WASH DRESS GOODS. In Both Stores.

Sale of Spring, 1909, Repp Suitings.

Consisting of woven checks and plain colors, with mercerized stripes of various sizes and color combinations.

19c per yard

value 25c

On Sale Second Floor.

LADIES' SUITS. In Both Stores.

Broadcloth three-piece Tailored Suits, Advance Spring Models.

37.50

The remaining stock of Tailored Suits, various models and materials.

16.50, 21.00 and 25.00

former prices $25.00 to $45.00

SHIRTWAIST DEP'TS. In Both Stores.

A complete assortment of Lingerie Waists for the Spring and Summer Seasons. Made of Mull, Sheer Linen and Swiss. Suitable for Southern or Tropical dress.

Sale of 500 dozen Lingerie Waists. Trimmed with dainty laces and embroideries. Ranging in price from 95c to 6.75

MUSLIN UNDERWEAR. In Both Stores.

A large stock of Muslin Underwear for the Spring Season, with the requisite garments suitable for the present mode of dress.

Gowns..... 95c to 7.75
Chemises..... 95c " 7.75
Drawers..... 50c " 7.75
Corset Covers..... 50c " 5.75
Petticoats..... 95c " 25.75
Combination Drawers and Corset Cover..... 95c " 12.75
Combination Corset Cover and Skirt..... 95c " 12.75

A varied assortment of Petticoats made of Taffetas, Messaline and Washable Fabrics.

JAMES MCGREERY & CO.

23rd Street

34th Street

JAMES MCGREERY & CO.

23rd Street

34th Street

UPHOLSTERY DEP'TS. In Both Stores.

On Wednesday and Thursday, January the 13th and 14th.

Portieres, Lace Curtains and Couch Covers.

About 500 pairs, Fine Portieres in Armure, Tapestry, Linen and Verona Velour. 5.00, 9.50 and 13.50 pair former prices 6.75, 14.00 and 18.00

Couch Covers of heavy reversible Tapestry—Kelim, Bokhara and other Oriental designs. 60 inches wide, 3 yds. long. 3.75, 5.00 and 6.00 each former prices 5.00, 7.00 and 8.50

Moquette Couch Covers, Persian designs and colors. 9.50 and 14.00 former prices 12.50 and 19.50

Tapestry Squares suitable for chair seats and cushion covers. 35c, 50c and 75c each

LACE CURTAINS.

2,500 pairs, Lace Curtains in designs that are to be discontinued at 25 to 33 1/2 per cent. less than usual prices. 2.00 to 10.00 per pair

23rd Street

34th Street

ON SALE EVERYWHERE.

1909 World Almanac

SONG HIT
of Ruth Allen and her
London Johnnies
Words & Music
with Next
SUNDAY WORLD

NOW APPEARING IN VAUDEVILLE IN GREATER NEW YORK.